

Alex joined the firm in 2019 and works in all areas of the firm's practice, including advising Alaska native corporations (ANCs) and businesses on corporate affairs, real estate matters, and commercial transactions.

Alex recently concluded a six-month secondment in a regional ANC's legal department, working on issues ranging from corporate governance matters, to real estate developments, to stock inheritance determinations.

He has also advised municipalities on renewable energy projects in collaboration with tribes and ANCs, resulting in power purchase agreements with the local utility.

Prior to joining the firm, Alex served as a law clerk to the Honorable Yvonne Lamoureux of the Alaska Superior Court in Anchorage. While in law school Alex also interned for the Honorable Gregory Miller of the Alaska Superior Court in Anchorage, interned at the U.S. Attorney's Office in Anchorage, and worked as a summer law clerk at Landye Bennett Blumstein, LLP. Before pursuing a career in the law, Alex worked as a legislative aide in the Alaska State Legislature.
